

Today
The President Signs
Three Arabs Hanged
Patting the Baby
An Old Marriage Custom
By Arthur Brisbane

PRESIDENT HOOVER signed the tariff bill yesterday, and now it's law. Secretary Mellon smiled and applauded at the signing. He has large business interests, is a good judge of prosperity and what the tariff will do to us.

You might say to him as book-makers say to a man betting on a long shot:

"You must know something."

All the growling and tariff wailing and worrying may prove to be unnecessary. We have it and may as well make the best of it.

After all, worse things could happen than compelling American consumers to buy goods produced by American workers and American business men.

The British are slow, but get things done. Yesterday, in Palestine, there was trouble, but news spread slowly in Palestine, no telegrams or radios in their dwellings among the Arabs.

There may be trouble when it comes generally known that three were hanged, and funerals celebrated with violent mourning.

Black flags flew from Arab buildings yesterday. At the Jewish agency, it was said yesterday:

"We hope that it may never be necessary again to execute the Arabs for murdering Jews."

When a baby cries hard, mama picks it up, puts it on the back, and puts it down, and the baby is happier.

Baby Wall Street has been crying hard for a couple of days. Mamma High Finance yesterday picked it up, patted it on the back, and at the close it was looking happier. Stocks went up from $1 to $5 a share, and wheat and cotton went up a little also.

If the baby only a little stomach ache, patting on the back, plus a hot water bottle, puts everything right.

If anything serious is the matter, you need a doctor.

Stomach ache is often caused by overeating. That probably is the trouble with Wall Street.

High finance, finding a giant appetite for stocks, with twenty millions gambling, provided more stocks than any Wall Street baby could digest. The load of hundreds of millions of new shares is lying heavily on the little stomach.

However, it is a marvelous baby, and may pull through.

A solemn German professor, deep in Mohammedan and Jewish marriage law, says that marriage is very old.

Mohammed borrowed the idea from the heathen gods.

The Talmud tells of Rab, "one of the great early scholars, announcing publicly that he sought a wife for the duration of his day, every time he journeyed to Jerusalem."

Persian princes on their travels entered into marriages for a single night. Jochanan, according to the Talmud, married, said, 300 years before Christ:

"When a man says, 'I will marry you for 30 days, then I am married to him for 30 days.'"

You may go a million years farther back than Jochanan among the monkey tribes, or visit the zoological garden today, and you will find the same idea highly developed. It is not what we USED to do, but what we OUGHT to do.

Lloyd George tells MacDonald, prime minister, that he will cooperate with the Labor party in legislation to solve the unemployment problem.

It will be interesting to see what a man as wise as Lloyd George can do to control the law of supply and demand, and demand to rule us all. Hundreds of thousands are idle. Many are sufficiently supplied with goods that the hundreds of thousands could produce. Raw materials are unlimited. Yet the unemployed cannot be brought in contact with the raw materials and the public need supplied.

Mysterious finance seems to control, and those that control finance understand it as little as its maker understood his Frankenstein monster.

A woman of Westfield, N. J., says her radio received 16 hours a day, and writes 1000 letters a day, telling radio artists how good they are. "That means a little too much radio enthusiasm."

However, it is better than living on the prairie, as thousands of farmers' wives used to do, no telephone, rural delivery, radio, talking machine, many of them going crazy from loneliness.

Hoover Backs Morrow for Senate

REPUBLICAN LIGHT FAULT REAL PROS MONDAY

WETS CHEER VICTORY OF MORROW

Drys Try to Discount Plurality of 267,000 for Jersey Senate Nominee

Washington, June 18 (AP)—Confidence Ambassador Morrow would be the next Senator from New Jersey was expressed at the White House today on behalf of President Hoover. "The White House will give every possible support to the Republican nominee for the Senate from New Jersey," the statement said. "The President and the administration have every confidence that Mr. Dwight Morrow will be the next Senator from New Jersey."

New York, June 18—While anti-prohibitionists rejoiced today over the victory of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow in the New Jersey primary, leaders of the drys declared themselves far from dejected.

The drys, in fact, tended to discount the huge plurality of 270,000 by which Morrow wins the full term senatorial nomination over Congressman Franklin W. Post, ardent dry, and former U. S. Senator Joseph W. Frelinghuysen, who, like Morrow, campaigned on an anti-dry platform.

With 221 districts making of 3364, the vote for Republican nomination for full term senator was: Morrow—43,693; Frelinghuysen—37,426.

The poll of John A. Kelly, a fourth candidate, was negligible. Comments on Morrow's victory obtained by the New York World follow:

LEADERS' COMMENT
F. SCOTT MORRISSE, General Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League—"The nomination of a wet candidate for senator from New Jersey is nothing new. Mr. Morrow is no more wet than ex-senator Edgar, whose place he will take if elected in November. Morrow will merely be another wet. If he is elected, it does not mean any addition to the wet vote in the Senate. Mr. Morrow's nomination is as much a tribute to his personal popularity as an endorsement of the wet program. Undoubtedly, many who voted for Morrow are opposed to liquor, but saw no danger of dry law repeal by the election."

Witness Grilled by Lyons After Denying Statements Attributed to Him

One member of the crew of the Memphis A. Liner Fairfax was warned that he was under oath, and another was rebuked for evasive answers at today's resumption of the probe of the crash of the Fairfax and tanker Phibbia off Scituate on June 10, which cost 46 lives.

Charles Jones, 19, was asked that he had not seen the Fairfax on the night of the tragedy. He denied it. Further questioning of Jones brought out that there was a John of the Fairfax on the night of the tragedy, waiting for the Phibbia to come on board. Jones was then asked if he had seen the Phibbia on the night of the tragedy.

Responsibility For Grundy Tariff Rests Squarely on G. O. P.

The responsibility for the Grundy tariff for extortion now rests squarely upon the Republican party. A Republican Congress passed the measure, a Republican President signs the bill and defends the policy.

In the coming elections the people will express their approval or disapproval of the action of the Republican party.

It is always well to have an issue clearly presented to the voters, so that they will know how to express their approval or disapproval, so that their public servants will know exactly for what reasons the approval or disapproval is expressed.

The present tariff measure is not what the Republican party promised the citizens.

It is not what President Hoover in his campaign speeches pledged himself to secure.

It is not according to the views he outlined to Congress.

It is not what the Senate stated once to secure.

The change in the attitude of the Republican party was brought about mainly by the shrewdness and resourcefulness and, shall we say, unscrupulousness of one man—an ex-lobbyist—Joseph R. Grundy, who was appointed to the Senate by the governor of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Grundy had been a lobbyist for many years in the halls of Congress.

He knew human nature. He knew politicians. He knew senators; and apparently he knew something of Presidents.

He had worked for the privileged interests in private life, and he continued to work for them in the Senate of the United States. He appealed to the selfishness of each senator. He showed them how to excuse their vote for the bill by offering some sort of protection to the interests of their particular states and sections.

And so the Congress changed its attitude on the bill, and the President changed his attitude toward the bill; for there was a sop in the bill for the President also, giving him the point he desired.

Thus every politician has his little perquisite; and the Grundy bill, expressing the views of a lobbyist for the privileged interests, became the law of the land.

Will the people approve this tariff for extortion in the next election?

That is difficult to tell. But one thing is certain—they do not approve of Grundy. His own Republican party repudiated him at the polls in the last senatorial primary in Pennsylvania.

So he will have only his brief senatorial term as appointee of the governor of Pennsylvania.

But that time was long enough to impose upon this country the most oppressive tariff taxation that has ever been enacted.

And it may have been long enough to accomplish some other things of consequence; such, for instance, as the defeat at the next election of the National Republican Party.

COURT DENIES PENSION CLAIM

Pensioned Policeman, Wife and Mrs. Hatch Plead Not Guilty; Politics in Case

Oliver B. Garrett goes on trial Monday.

Denying all motions except that to quash one indictment charging the former police liquor raider; his wife and Mrs. William J. Hatch with conspiracy, Judge William A. Burns in Superior Court today ruled that trial could not be postponed until October.

Atty. William J. Foley informed the court he was prepared to proceed on Friday or Monday and Monday was set as the day.

The graft charges against Garrett, Mrs. Garrett and Mrs. Hatch will be taken first. Garrett will later stand trial on the pension indictment.

ONE INDICTMENT VOICED
Today's proceedings, which included trial and plea by the indicted trio and pleas by their counsel, Judge Burns thought the indictments similar with no necessity of repetition of similar charges.

While an definite statement was made by the court, it was believed Judge Burns thought the indictments similar with no necessity of repetition of similar charges.

Defense motion for postponement of the trial until October was based on the claim that the entire population of Suffolk county had been prejudiced in the Garrett case by the attorney-general's hearing, newspaper stories and editorializing.

The coming political battle for the Democratic nomination for Suffolk district attorney between Joseph J. Sullivan and William J. Sullivan.

Callahan argued at length, declaring that he was not asking for a change of venue, although he thought his clients entitled to it.

He read an editorial from the Boston newspaper with wide circulation, and declared it conclusive evidence that the Garrett case was an issue in the political campaign.

He pointed out that Mrs. Neuman had been awaiting trial for several months.

"Why the rush in this case?" he asked, and added: "All this has been done simply because the attorney-general believes that public sentiment and political expediency call for the trying of the case now."

"As the situation now stands, Continued on Page 2, Column 8

DAWES BOOSTS CHICAGO

Chicago, June 18 (AP)—Charles G. Dawes, American Ambassador to Great Britain, came home today and with Helen Maria waves of his upside down pipe, commented largely on various subjects.

Chicago doesn't need any defense. What the hell is the difference what people say about it? Chicago will go right on being a great city for centuries."

About Chicago crime and his taking of the day of clearing it up: "Talk, talk, talk, when Chicago moves there won't be much talking about it. Certainly I won't contribute any talk in a situation which demands and will get action."

BISHOP CANNON HINTS AT SUIT

Washington, June 18 (AP)—Representative Tinkham, of Massachusetts, was challenged by Bishop Cannon today to repeal his charges against the dry leader in a way which would make him subject to prosecution for slander.

Speaking in the House, Tinkham said the Southern churchman "will stand convicted in the eyes of all honest men of having appropriated to his own use money given to the prosecution of the anti-dry campaign of two years ago."

The assertion was made after Tinkham had reviewed Cannon's refusal to tell the Senate lobby committee of the disbursement of $48,300 given him by E. C. Jamison of New York to promote the anti-dry cause in the South.

Passing through Louisville, Ky., last night, Cannon read of Tinkham's statement in the newspapers.

Clara Bow Thrills Dallas With 'Youth's $30,000'

Dallas, Tex., June 18 (AP)—Clara Bow, "it girl of the movies, is going to leave Monday or Tuesday, she says, after giving Dallas the first real thrill of the hot weather season."

She appeared mysteriously Monday, using an assumed name which did not conceal her identity successfully. She said her studio managers thought she was in Hawaii.

Tuesday, interviewed by a reporter from the Dallas Times Herald, she told a story about dates with a young business man of Dallas which led to a threatened alienation suit and payment of $30,000.

According to this story, which could not be confirmed from California records, she came to Dallas to explain some things to the young man.

Studio officials in Hollywood discounted the story. They said Clara was going to talk extravagantly. They said they knew nothing of any demand for money.

HOOPER NEW EXPECTED TO REORGANIZE TARIFF COMMISSION

BORAH CALLS FOR TEST OF NEW LAW

Application of Flexible Provision Sought in His Resolution

Washington, June 18 (AP)—The Hawley-Smoot tariff law became effective today and imposed upon the customs service the task of putting its 1122 new rate schedules into operation overnight.

Technically, the new statute became law at midnight last night, but its provisions could not be made applicable until the opening at eight o'clock this morning of customs offices at the various ports of entry.

Actually, the new rates were operative against all cargoes for which declarations had not been filed at the close of business yesterday.

Sixteen customs experts from all sections of the country were called here by the Treasury Department to formulate regulations for enforcement of the act. Ordinarily this process has taken from a year to 18 months. The Treasury, however, predicted the tariff law would be operating smoothly within 90 days.

With the bill signed by President Hoover and on the statute books, Washington looked forward today to the reorganization of the tariff commission for which it makes provision. This will be accomplished by the President who is free to reappoint the present members.

Senator Borah, independent Republican, Idaho, introduced a resolution yesterday calling on the commission to make an investigation of the comparative production costs here and abroad of a variety of articles.

These included shoes, furniture, cement, hoes and agricultural tools. His action was with a view to applying the flexible provisions of the new law.

Canada Countervailing Duties, June 18 (AP)—Higher tariffs on a dozen commodities imported from the United States went into effect automatically today under countervailing duties.

The principle is that the Canadian tariff shall be as high on an article coming from another country as the rate that country levies against the same commodity entering from Canada.

Patatoes particularly will be affected. Flour, grain, cotton, meat, eggs and butter are among the other commodities affected.

Twelve Ships Win Race Against Tariff Law

New York, June 18 (AP)—Winning a race against time, 12 ships were in port today, having cleared customs before the new tariff went into effect and thereby saved importers hundreds of thousands of dollars in increased duties.

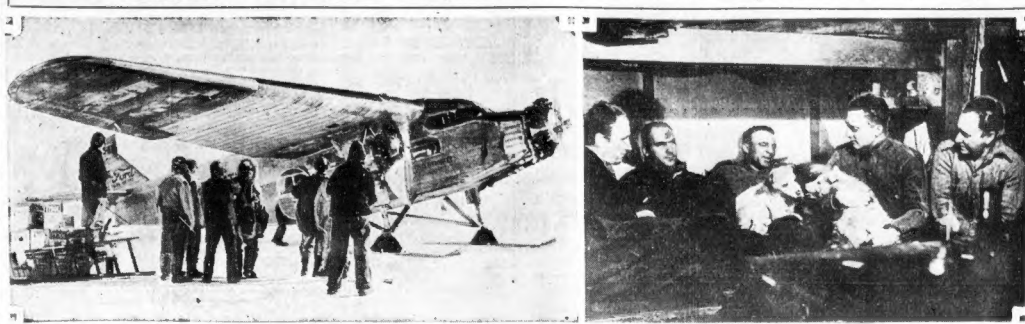

Several others lost out because of fog. In addition to the importers who were paying duty on incoming merchandise, others flocked to the customs house to withdraw goods from warehouses at the old rates.

Customs officials said that the day's receipts were in excess of $1,750,000.

LONE COP ROUTS 3 IN SHOOTING

Salisbury Beach, June 18—A lone night watchman stood off and finally routed three burglars in a gun battle at the Ocean Echo ballroom early today. One of the burglars is believed to have been wounded.

The burglars escaped after an aimless chase along the beach, led by Nicholas and Police Chief Henry Cole, while the ballroom was being flooded by an automatic sprinkler set off by one of the burglars.

Nichols is the watchman for the Ocean Echo property, which includes the ballroom, bathhouse, stores and amusement places.

About 3 o'clock he heard a window being jimmied in the bathroom and he concealed himself behind a counter. When the three burglars entered the bathroom, he fired his hands.

Revolver fire was the answer. Nichols emptied his gun and each of the other three is believed to have fired two shots. Bloodstains were found where one of the burglars had stood.

Soon after daylight a man who said he was a resident of Beverly Hills was discovered sleeping under the Ocean Echo property and was arrested on a charge of vagrancy. He denied any knowledge of the break and said he heard no shots. Police were inclined to believe him.

WHAT A SURPRISE. Little did this great whale think that a cameraman would be waiting to snap his picture as he hobbled to the surface for a breath of air. One view of the surroundings sent the giant mammal ducking back.

THE ANTARCTIC PENGUIN just couldn't resist the temptation of getting a closeup view of some of the dogs with the Byrd Expedition. Here they are giving each other the once over.

FAIRFAX WITNESS IS WARNED IN PROBE

of dead passengers or others at the North Grove, Mr. Johnson testified that he saw no other survivors from among the crew while there.

"Didn't you see Johnson there?" asked Capt. Lyons.

"Oh, yes, I saw Johnson," replied the witness.

"Then what you said before was a lie?"

"I didn't remember it," said Jones.

Jones said he saw no boats leaved to search for persons in the water. He saw two lifeboats filled with passengers partially lowered, but not to the water.

When he testified he had not told reporters of a fight between an officer of the Fairfax and a United States Marine, who was among the passengers, he was again warned he was under oath.

Johnson told the investigators he went to the fire station about the Fairfax before testifying today, to refresh his memory.

He denied any collusion with any of his shipmates regarding testimony he was to give. After telling of putting a fire hose in operation alone, he said no officers of the liner appeared at the fire station. Johnson did not recall lifeboats in the sea, but could not say whether members of the crew or passengers occupied them.

QUESTION OF SPEED

It was disclosed today that alleged "sawing" of the Fairfax's lifeboats is due to come under investigation tomorrow. D. W. McNeill, vice-president of the company and a passenger on the steamship on her lifter trip, is ready to testify.

McNeill has stated in interviews that he did not try to assume authority at his investigation at Norfolk, principally that the Fairfax speed was excessive in fog, and that some of the witnesses, and that some of the hose on board burst when water pressure was turned on to fight the fire.

ON STAND AGAIN

Arthur Donovan, M. T. student, testified at Norfolk that he saw several persons leap into the flames. George B. Green, another crew member, said he saw the crew climb to the boat deck, which was aflame, and lowered himself to the deck below with a rope, to save his life. A man and a woman went down this rope first, he testified.

At the Boston hearing progressed today, Capt. William Wheeler, inspector-general of the Coast Guard service, was back in Washington writing an official report of his investigation of alleged laxity on the part of the Coast Guard. His probe was conducted at North Adams, and it is understood that the Coast Guard will be completely exonerated in Wheeler's report.

The Boston hearing resumed today with Jones, the officer testifying that he went to the morgue and talked with a man who he learned was a reporter. He gave his name to this man, but had no further conversation with him. Jones then testified he saw no other member of the Fairfax crew there.

Taken under examination by Capt. Lyons, he admitted seeing Johnson of the crew there.

Told to Look

Q—What talk did you have with Johnson and the other man, whom you say you didn't know?

A—The other man asked me about Powell, the third officer, having trouble with some Marines. I told him I knew nothing about it.

Q—Why didn't you tell that before when Capt. Stewart asked you about what you said at the morgue?

A—I didn't think of it. Q—I want you to remember that you are under oath here. Now look about this room. Do you see anyone here who was at the fire with you? A—No, sir.

Q—Look carefully. You have and looked around. When these records are completed your answers might vary with other testimony. A—I don't see anyone who was at the fire.

Jones denied having made any statement about passengers jumping off the vessel. He admitted having had a talk with a woman, but did not say who she was.

Luther Johnson, 18, a fireman aboard the Fairfax, said he was on duty on deck and was relieved just before the Fairfax was in the fog. He said he saw no excitement.

The witness said he went to the fire station about the liner this morning to refresh his memory, as he knew he was going to testify. He denied he had any other coping in or out of that he was in collusion with any other member of the crew with regard to testimony he was to give.

Johnson testified he heard no alarm bells at any time. Asked how many persons were at the morgue when he was in the hospital deck shipmates, he replied "I don't know. I didn't count them."

GOLD STAR SHIP HITS ON REEF

New York, June 18 (AP)—The United States liner, USS Albatross, hit the mud and gilt of Fobbs Reef in New York harbor this morning, but tug pulled her loose in less than two hours and she continued to her pier.

In the haze of an overcast morning, the vessel struck her nose into the reef, which lies about three miles south of the lower tip of Manhattan, at 7:08 a. m. (U.S.T.C.)

On board the liner, inbound from Southampton and Cherbourg, were 232 Gold Star mothers, mostly from the Pacific Coast, returning from a pilgrimage to the battlefields of France. Capt. Theodore Van Fleet was in command.

Seven tug pulled the Roosevelt. The vessel had a cargo of 600 tons, considered light.

N. Y. to Give Byrd Big Welcome Tomorrow

New York, June 18 (AP)—Returning home after 16 months of exploration in the Antarctic, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and the members of his expedition will be received as conquering heroes by the city of New York at noon tomorrow.

Expectations were that the city's welcome will surpass all receptions here since that accorded Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh on his return from his flight in Paris.

A marine parade up the harbor, a salute of 15 guns from Governors Island and a guard of honor including 1500 troops for a procession up Broadway to City Hall have been arranged in honor of the ship which flew over the earth's two poles.

First greetings to the returning explorers, however, will be extended from a big Navy amphibian plane carrying Governor Roosevelt.

Fliers Going Strong: Aloft Seven Days

Chicago, June 18 (AP)—The endurance flight plane, City of Chicago, had 160 hours, or eight hours less than a week, of continuous flight in the air at 8:45 a. m. today. The plane, in charge of John and Kenneth Hunter, is attempting to set a new record of the "St. Louis Robin," which stayed up 620 hours last year.

MISS HOWLAND WILLS $25,000 TO CHAUFFEUR

Boston Relatives to Share in the $1,000,000 Estate of New Bedford Woman

Taunton, June 18—Private bequests of hundreds of thousands of dollars, including $25,000 to her chauffeur, were made in the will of Mary Tucker Howland of New Bedford, last of a famous family that made its fortune in the whaling days, who died ten days ago.

The will was filed here today by Oliver Prescott, New Bedford attorney, named executor. Much of Miss Howland's wealth accrued to her on the death of her sister, Alice Russell Howland, in 1914. She left the estate will total $1,000,000.

Miss Howland was not a kind woman of Betty Green as generally believed, according to Mr. Prescott. The Howland family, from which Betty Green came, was a distinct family.

HOME TO CHAUFFEUR.

Franklin A. Benson of New Bedford, the lucky chauffeur, in addition to the $25,000 he has received, Miss Howland's residence and garage. His wife is given $2000. His niece, Louise, is given $2000.

The nearest of kin are cousins of Miss Howland.

Recruits, in addition to those to the Benson family, are Rachel, Abby S. and Rita Howland of Fairhaven, $15,000 each; Allen H. Garret of Cambridge, $10,000; John Howland of New Bedford, $10,000; Weston and John Howland, $10,000 each; Elizabeth Mason of Providence, $15,000.

BOSTON BENEFICIARIES

Blanche Hastings, Katherine and Frederick Howland of Roxbury, $2500 each; Mabel Davis and her sister, Esther Davis Simon, $5000 each; Mary Hawes, New Bedford, $1000; Charles A. Kidder, Boston, $1000; Alice and Bertha Wood, $2000 each; Dr. Charles A. Pratt, New Bedford, $1000; Bernard Frederick Wood, Baltimore, $2000; William Penn Howland, Dallas, Tex., $2000.

New Bedford Monthly Meeting of Friends, $2000; New Bedford Y. W. C. A., $1000; St. Luke's Hospital, New Bedford, income of trust fund of $25,000 in memory of Alice Russell Howland.

The testator directs that her jewelry and personal effects be given to Alice Prescott and Alma Wood, jointly, to be disposed of as per previous instructions.

The rest of the residue of the estate is ordered divided as follows: One-third to Abraham H. Howland, Jr., Lodge of Masons, New Bedford, in memory of her brother; One-quarter to St. Luke's Hospital, New Bedford, one-quarter to the Old Dartmouth Historical Society; One-eighth to the New Bedford Animal League, one-eighth to the New Bedford Anti-Tuberculosis association.

The domestic help problem is solved by the fact that the chauffeur, who has been advertised days in the New York columns.

Tercentenary Pilgrimages—No. 9 THE MONROE TAVERN, LEXINGTON

BACK FROM THE HIGHWAY and among trees, whose leafy shade partially conceals its ancient frame, stands a tavern of Revolutionary fame.

Built in 1695, it has weathered the centuries and is in fine condition, more sound than many a structure of recent date. The inscription tells us that "Earl Percy's Headquarters and Hospital April 19, 1775" was in this building.

That is all, but who has not heard of that momentous day and preceding night when out of travel American liberty was born. As Longfellow has expressed it in his poem about the famous ride of Paul Revere:

"That is all, and yet, through the gloom and the light,
The fate of a nation was riding that night."
And Hawthorne describes for us the march of the British troops which were quartered about this tavern:

"There were stories of marching troops like dreams through the midnight. Around the little rude, rustic house there was here and there the heat of a drum and the mouselike of farmers with their weapons. So all that night there was marching, there was mustering, there was trouble, and on the road from Boston, a steady march of soldiers' feet onward, onward into the land."

Melrose Girl Hurt as Autos Collide

Five stitches were required to close cuts in the face of Miss Annie R. Aiken of 29 Green St., Melrose, as the result of an auto accident last night when her car was in collision with a machine of Rufus A. Greenlaw of Lebanon St., Melrose. The Greenlaw car was overturned.

David R. Aiken, aged 30, who was in the car with his daughter, was uninjured. The driver of the Greenlaw car was uninjured.

side of Lexington, Earl Percy's reinforcements halted the blood-long fight of the British from Concord. The king's troops were exhausted by the method of Yankee warfare and disbarred by the losses which they had suffered. They were forced back along the road from Concord in complete rout until they met Percy's men, who had arrived to help them.

All night long and all day the British had been on the road, fighting their way through groups of minutemen who harassed every step, so under Percy's wing they stopped at the old tavern to rest for a few hours and to give aid to the wounded.

They spent the time eating and drinking, and when John Raymond asked for payment for the refreshments, they settled the score by shooting him, then piled up the furniture in the taproom, set fire to it, and continued their retreat, still hotly pressed by the rebels.

The fire was extinguished without much damage and the tavern remains long after Earl Percy's troops have departed. A bullet-hole may be seen in the old bar-room, where one of Percy's "shooters" fired his musket.

George Washington later honored the inn by dining there on his visit to New England in 1780. William Monroe built the tavern in the latter part of the 17th century and the 20th century has seen it pass to the care of the Lexington Historical Society by the will of James Monroe, who started in that document:

"—that these landmarks in our country's history which have become identified as monuments of great social and political events, ought to be preserved to posterity, not alone for their intrinsic interest but more especially for the power in bringing to the minds and hearts of their posterity a realization of the courage, self-sacrifice, and loyal devotion of our forefathers."

Lexington lies on Route No. 2A from Boston. Elevated to Arlington Heights, with a short bus ride to complete the journey.

BRITISH SEIZE TAX DODGERS

Delhi, June 15 (AP)—The Government today began closing in upon violators of the taxation ordinance, arresting 17 cultivators in a village 20 miles from Delhi for non-payment of their land taxes.

The campaign of Indian Nationalists for non-payment of land taxes is fast getting under way in Gujarat.

The Government is attempting movable property of the defaulting landholders, who lock their doors and come out as soon as the drum beats an advance approach of the village officers.

Some of the landholders are lying in the fields throughout the entire day, returning to their homes to sleep at night.

To drive nationalist volunteers were arrested this morning at the Fairaygraha camp at Idagavav.

The camp has now been evacuated.

YALE CONFERS
10 HONORARY
DEGREES

New Haven, June 18 (AP)—Ten outstanding figures in widely varied phases of life were honored today by Yale University when President James Howard Angell conferred upon them honorary degrees in conjunction with commencement exercises for the Yale graduate schools. Presentation of 438 degrees in the graduate schools brought Yale's total degrees in course for the 228th commencement to 1165.

Church, stage, diplomacy and the bar were represented on today's honor list in addition to the field of science and literature. Master of arts degrees were conferred upon Robert Borthwick Adam, Buffalo, N. Y., owner of the greatest collection of material relating to Doctor Johnson to be found in the world, Paul Whitford Harrison, New York, medical missionary and author of the book "The Arab Al-Nabawi," and William G. M. Jones, New York, dramatist, producer and actor, who created the stage role of Sherlock Holmes.

JAMES W. GAMBLE HONORED. James Gamble, president of the American Petroleum Institute, New York, was awarded the degree of doctor of science and engineering.

DEGREE FOR BISHOP. To the Right Rev. Francis John McConnell, New York, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, was awarded the degree of doctor of divinity.

People Should Be Allowed Vote on Tariff

Editor Boston American: It is a most unfortunate affair that the people of this country are not allowed to vote on such an important question as the tariff bill that has just passed (in the Senate) by a majority of two votes. We are losing our sense or are we trying "to get it out of the way"?

If this tariff measure does not satisfy the people, why should it have been passed "to get it out of the way"?

If the country desires to keep the high price it has had among the nations, this unfortunate occurrence should not have been allowed.

No wonder we have Communists and Socialists among us, and increasing in numbers. "It benefits the few at the expense of the many." Is this Democracy?

"TARIFF BILL"

Fairfax Disaster Should Act as a Warning to Masters

Editor Boston American: The devil of the sea has claimed its victims. The angry waters have swallowed their prey. The brave sailors who perished that their passengers might live in sea another day are already forgotten. The world will little note nor long remember the Fairfax and the pandemonium scenes of terror.

The hapless mother, whose pleas of hope was that her daughter and son might still be alive, has died. We as a nation, proud for those unfortunate ones whose lives were taken for no cause. Let this disaster be a warning to the commanders of the sea. "Guide your passengers to safety."

What Is the Oldest
House in Bay State?

Editor Boston American: I find the picture of old houses in this state interesting. In today's issue the old Fairbanks house is shown. It is claimed for this house that it is the oldest in the state. Yet there is in Salem a house which is supposed to have been built before 1650, and there is a tablet in this effect on it. It is called "The Witch House," because the preliminary trials of witches were held there. It is also claimed that Roger Williams lived in it before his banishment.

There are also the houses of John Adams and Mrs. Standish in Duxbury and South Duxbury respectively. I do not know in what year they were built, but it seems to me that the history of the Salem house should be investigated to see if it was really built before 1650, and if it is the oldest house in the state, not the Fairbanks house.

Quincy Wants Real
Indians in Parade

Editor Boston American: City of Quincy committee for the parade of 1936 would be very grateful if your valuable paper would help us to find in Greater Boston some citizens who have descended from local Indian tribes to help in our parade. "Chickatabi."

The Indian drama, for it is really a drama we are to give rather than a pageant, is a very serious affair to place the chief, who signed a 50 year peace compact with Governor Winsor, in the right hand to lead the side the far better known Plymouth Indian Museum.

"Chickatabi" by his control of his brave living on and about Mount Pleasant, about to be taken by the Commonwealth for its historical connections, was to prevent degradation and trouble.

Should we wish to add to our list of four or five hundred citizens a number of those who have Indian blood in their veins, there would be added an sentimental in interest which would add greatly to the interest of the parade.

Style Show at Horse Races

Another big day at the races! The Country Club shed its calm Colonial dignity and burst into a bloom of printed chiffons and bizarre sports costumes. This was the day when all of fashionable society from the North and South Shores, town and country, as well as an interested public put on their best summer ensembles and mingled for the biggest event of New England's horse-loving world.

IT WAS INDIVIDUALLY impressive to distinguish Toni O'Grady from a colonel's wife. The women were all as attractively gowned. The day was "hot" warm, with fresh breeze blowing in over the course, and the clubhouse seating in the midst of green rolling lawns and tall elms, presented a picture of unostentatious New England beauty. Many of the guests preferred to remain seated on the lawns to watch the excitement of the steeplechase entrants taking the jumps from their point, while thousands poured into the grandstand to see the start and finish. It was a jolly crowd and many reunions between friends, and it was pleasant to see the young folks and the not so young gathered together to share their fun.

FROM THE NORTH SHORE, we saw Mrs. Henry P. McKean, in smart black and white ensemble, graciously greeting her many friends; and the attractive Russell Burrage family. Mrs. Burrage, with her baby, sat in a crowd; Mrs. Augusta Goodwin, always charming, in dark printed chiffon, with her daughter, as chic as ever, in pastel green crepe with cap and large brilliant; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Proctor were there, she in black and red printed chiffon quite suited to her brunette beauty; attractive Mrs. Henry Lee of Beverly was taking a real interest in the races and looking Miss Evelyn Windeler to become bride of John B. Robertson.

MISS EVELYN WINDELER is engaged. This news came in over the radio from London and caused quite a stir of excitement. She is the attractive daughter of Mrs. and Mr. G. Herbert Windeler of 43 Bay State rd., and is to marry John Bruce Robertson of the Gordon Highlanders, son of Col. and Mrs. William Robertson of Cornwall, England.

MR. FRANCIS LLOYD WINTON, number of the 31 class at Harvard and son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Winton of New York and Gladstone, N. J., is engaged to Miss Louise Victor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Victor of New York. Miss Victor made her debut last December after her graduation from Miss Porter's School. Mr. Winton attended St. Mark's School before entering Harvard and is a member of the Phi, Rho and Hasty Pudding Clubs.

charming in her chiffon and large brown hat.

IT WAS NICE TO SEE MRS. Gale Stevens back from her long sojourn abroad and she did appear in the best of health and good looks wearing the fashionable large hat and print of the mode. Mrs. Larz Anderson was there with a prominent party, among whom were May-Gee, Clarence Edwards and Dr. and Mrs. Harvey Cushing. The Bay and Tuckermans were interested spectators as were the Fredrick Ayers and Nell Rice from Hamilton. Mrs. Tuckerman had in baby blue, as usual. Mrs. George S. West was youthful in white chiffon, which was quite distinctive among the many floral patterns.

ON THURSDAY, RACE-LANDERS, Framingham estate of Mr. John E. Macomber, will be the final scene of the races and it will wind up the most successful program ever put on by the Eastern Horse Club.

MR. AND MRS. HENRY S. GREW are at their Manchester summer home. They closed their Marlborough st. house last week.

Sheer Frocks Bring Cool Beauty at Night

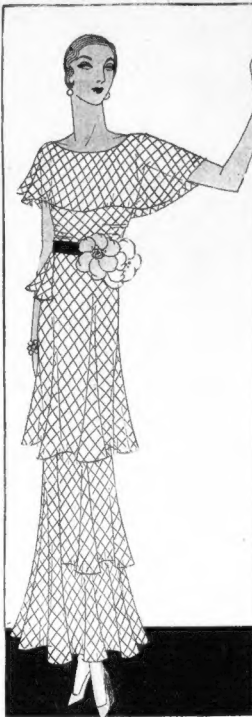

From Paris Bureau, Boston Evening American.

PARIS, June 18. SIMPLY DELIGHTFUL for summer evenings is the best description and label that can be applied to one's frock destined for wear on torrid nights. For it is an oppressive evening that most of us turn from the more elaborate type of frock and seek something that is cool, simple and yet sparklingly refreshing. Such a frock of simple material, plainly cut with soft, graceful touches, is neither to be classified in the formal or informal category. It is just a warm weather frock designed to give comfort without sacrificing good looks or chic, and no woman should hesitate to obtain such frocks for her wardrobe and to make adequate use of them.

Semi-sheer materials, typified especially by georgette, are well in the lead this season, as the sensible compromise between the very sheer fabric and materials of heavy or close weaves. Black georgette is ideal for summer days as well as evenings as it both tallies and drapes gracefully and well and doesn't crush easily, which fact saves it from the sad and indifferent appearance that characterizes an many thin fabrics in hot weather. Many houses are showing frocks with little capes of black georgette relieved with touches of white that seem absolutely weather-proof and are really awfully neat and nice.

As a suggestion for a cool, friendly little frock for summer evenings may we offer for your consideration a sketch of a frock depicting a Lenier model created for such requirements. It is of white mousseline bared in gray and black. The deep bertha forms a cape in back. The skirt is built in a series of tiers, irregularly placed and very circular and flaring. On the black satin ribbon belt are placed at one side two large red flowers.

The afternoon frock of black georgette from Cheruit. It has a removable cape which dips in a deep point at the back. There is a flaring cuff placed over a close undercuff of white silk pique matching the black. The skirt is flared overcuff, the cape and the skirt are trimmed with horizontal folds, each about one inch in width.

WHITE MOUSSELINE bared in gray and black is used in this summer evening suggestion by Lenier. The deep bertha forms a cape in back. (Sketched in Paris.)

BLACK GEORGETTE afternoon frock is from Cheruit. It has removable cape which dips in a deep point at back. Note flaring cuffs over undercuff. (Sketched in Paris.)

ARTHUR CURTIS JAMES, Beacon Hill House; Dr. and Mrs. William J. Maloney, Casa del Sole; Mr. and Mrs. Van Buren, Gray Craig; Mrs. James Laurens Van Allen, Wakehurst; Mr. and Mrs. Webster, Pen Craig; Mr. and Mrs. Grafton Minto, Oakwood; Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Duncan, Bonaventure; Mrs. Walter James, Rockhurst; Mrs. Hugh Auchincloss, Hammarham Farm; Mrs. Nicholas Brown, Highbury; Dr. and Mrs. Hamilton Rice, Mimari; Mr. Bragdon, Corner's Lane and Mr. and Mrs. Vaneer 2, Reed, Jr. Marlborough.

Others are Mr. and Mrs. Betty Alden.

For awhile, women are able to endure the foot discomfort that comes from wearing ordinary shoes.

But in the end, after pinched blood vessels, cramped bones, and aching muscles have endured the torture just so long, the feet rebel and demand attention.

It is the height of folly to procrastinate until this point is reached.

Give your feet a square deal starting now. It is ever so much easier to prevent foot troubles than to correct them—and ever so much easier to correct them in the early stages rather than later on.

And remember, supreme foot comfort—Arch Preserver Shoe comfort—involves no loss of style.

Harvard Out to Even Series With Yale Today

SPILLS THRILL THOUSANDS AT EASTERN HORSE CLUB MEET

THESE REMARKABLE action photos, taken by Gun Williams, staff photographer, at The Country Club, Brookline, yesterday, show two of the many thrilling moments that made the holiday meeting of the Eastern Horse Club show of such intense interest to over 20,000 racing fans.

Above, Jockey E. Fitzpatrick is shown being thrown from John J. Nesbitt's Lady Guinevere at the Liverpool jump in the Eastern Dog Club steeplechase. Treador, C. Pinnon up, won the race.

MR. W. G. WHITNEY had a narrow escape from serious injury in the National Hunt Club steeplechase when his mount, Cloudland, threw him at the Liverpool jump. Cloudland was leading at the time of the accident. Golden Horse won.

CRIMSON NINE

LOSES FIRST GAME, 9-5

HARVARD YALE
Mayes, ss. Nugent, 3b. McGrath, cf. Vincent, 1b. Wood, 1b. DeLoach, 2b. Lupton, 3b. Fletcher, 3b. Sheldon, c. Brown, 2b. Smith, 1b. Aldrich, c. Meigs, c. Jensen, 1b. Budd, 1b. Jones, 1b. Harts, 1b. Tins, 1b. Harts, 1b.

Harvard and Yale clash on the diamond at Soldiers Field today in the second, and probably the last game of the series.

Yale's 3-2 verdict over the Mitchellmen at New Haven makes them the favorites at high odds for today's clash.

While Fred Mitchell names Charles Deane to start on the mound for Harvard today, the Can-Am pilot will have several other Crimson pitchers on the bench, should Deane falter.

Probably 10,000 fans will jam the grandstand at Harvard today, for Harvard alumni intend to turn out en masse for the party.

Definite News on Fight Situation

Some definite angle on the muddled fight situation should be forthcoming tomorrow, when Max Schmeling, synthetic heavyweight champ, and Jack Sharkey appear before the New York commission.

The big boys want to put the pair back in September, and there are several reasons why they may be able to do that little thing.

Ordinarily a newly crowned champion takes a year off to collect from theaters, movies, and so on. But Max is not an ordinary champ. He won on a goal and the dear public thinks very little indeed, of his title pretensions.

The collecting for Max will not be an act, while his tickety throne will entitle him to more than a third of the gate if he goes right to work.

Sharkey will have to take the short end, but he's willing to give his part to charity for the chance to redeem the excusable slip he made the other memorable evening.

The old ring game still needs to be rebuilt, and a clash with a clear title, even though it would be to do better than anything else.

Maxie's Manager Wants the Money

Then, too, Joe Jacobs, who chiselled into Schmeling's contract, wants to collect while the collecting is good. Joseph knows the ways of the chisellers and wishes to get his before someone comes along and kidnaps his champion right out of his lap. His agreement with the Max ends in October. Anything can happen when a meat ticket is not sealed and tied up beyond question.

The swarming of titles by commissions doesn't mean a thing. The fans want to see a fight properly. The boys are inclined to give Schmeling the title, and while they're at it, let the business naturally follow. For fighting is a business, and the customers certainly have something coming to them, after their last few letdowns.

Baseball in the Stock Market

There has been an unusual lot of inquiring lately about postponed big league ball games. The phones, around noon, ring at least a hundred times a day. And here's the answer.

The boys in the stock market are playing the ball game. They have what they call the O.R. market in the Boston, New York and Chicago exchanges. The market is bought and sold on the number of runs scored each day. The market has been doing lately and the young brokers have to do something to keep the market.

An imaginary tide, based on the number of games scheduled, is set up. The boys can buy or sell. It is a matter of personal trading. Buyers cannot on more runs being scored than the quoted figure. Sellers speculate the other way.

It's quite a racket, and the lower has to kick in with a $250 commission. Which adheres to the market tradition of never giving a sucker an even break.

Advance Info Helps the Smart

This sort of speculation has become a real fever with the boys, none of whom will do and lose heavily. The pool is named after Organized Baseball, a laugh in itself, as that body grows most astutely on all sorts of gambling.

The books close daily when the first schedule is made. Under way and, with the lively ball and big money, the boys never in doubt the last pastime is ended.

The smart boys, getting a flash that a game had been postponed, can buy their bets before the information becomes general. That's why it is in the W. B. is such an important market these days.

Malden Tied Club Wins Home Opener

Women Caught in Pajamas at Roll Call Are Given Punishment

NOT ONLY is the food badly cooked but it is actually dirty. The principal dish is a sort of disgusting soup-saw.

HOW THE STORY STARTS

When Helen Smith, nicknamed "Smithy," first joined the ambulance corps and went to France her nerves were shattered by the terrible sights of wounded soldiers, but she soon became hardened. Smithy shares a room with five girls, among them Tosh, rough, good-natured idol of the company. General conditions are bad enough, but a tyrannical commandant, whom Tosh christened "Mrs. Hb," adds to the hardships. The results have been heavy and when Smithy sees the married boys she inwardly revolts. After a hectic night, with only a few hours sleep, Commandant a whistle blows calls the girls to duty.

CHAPTER 7

We are dressed. Fully, we give each other a short survey. Skinny has a wrinkled stocking and Tosh's tie is hanging out. My neck is dirty, but it is too late to remedy that. Etta Potato pulls my collar higher. That camouflage it excellently. Commandant insists that we be carefully and neatly dressed for 7:30 roll-call, white shirts, ties, smoothly dressed hair, brushed, uncrumpled uniforms, even though we may have been driving until 5 a. m. In that case we may return after roll-call and sleep until 9, but as this means missing breakfast altogether we can only do it when our private provisions permit.

Woe betide a kind friend caught sneaking a cup of tea from the mess-room for a driver who has a headache and feels too ill to stay up for 8 o'clock breakfast. We have tried not dressing fully for roll-call. For a whole glorious week our room rolled-cleverly beneath our uniforms, after which we returned to our sea-bags till 9 and breakfasted comfortably on tea and potted meat, but we were discovered and made an example of. Commandant delights in making examples.

Now we are severely inspected during roll-call to ensure that our morning toilet is complete. "All ready!" We arrive just in time. Commandant has been up since dawn, by all accounts. She would have made a good wife for a polecat; he didn't need any sleep either. The room is packed with heavy-eyed, peevish, faced girls with weary drooping mouths and dejected expressions.

They are ill for want of sleep. Some of them look on the verge of collapse. A girl who arrived three days ago is coughing badly. She caught a chill on the boat, but commandant will work her till she drops. I cut an experienced glance over her. Within three weeks she will be back in Blighty, marked unfit. Lucky devil. I envy her. I wish I

Dr. Armstrong Tells Optometrists How Eye-aid Can Be More Beautiful

The modern grandmother attires herself becomingly in a sleeveless white sport dress and is ready to tell a group of her fellow workers, in this case optometrists, just how to make a success of their work from the feminine point of view.

The vision young grandmother has to tell her optometrists is to tell her what kind of glasses she needs, and I expect to be able to advise women who come to me what kind of glasses are most becoming and most suitable to them.

A woman looks after little important details like this, "I have a pair of glasses that I have worn for every hour of the day and for every season, suitable glasses are just as important as appropriate clothes."

Selected glasses are designed only for sport or business and a man or woman wearing them at any other time is in much out of place as if either were wearing bedroom slippers.

Dr. Armstrong has her philosophy of the proper aspect to wear on each occasion worked out to a science. When a woman comes to her to be fitted for glasses she finds out whether she is a housewife or a society woman, and then considers her that she ought to buy the type of glasses for the class she is going to wear.

STUP OF LEARNING. Not content with that, she also has the prospective buyer try on her hat with the glasses, and if they are not the shape that is most becoming to her face she tries on a different one until they are just right for each individual case.

WALTHAM GIRL WINS RARE HONOR AT RADCLIFFE GRADUATION

WINS DEGREE FOR WORK IN PHYSICS

Lord Mayor of Cambridge, Eng., Takes Part in the Commencement

In the presence of His Worship, Harry Franklin, lord mayor of Cambridge, Eng., and of Mayor Richard M. Russell of the local Cambridge, a woman was honored for the first time in the field of physics at Radcliffe College commencement exercises at Sanders Theater, today.

For the work she has done in investigating what the world is made of, Miss Lucie McLellan of Waltham, a graduate of Wellesley in 1929, was awarded the degree of doctor of philosophy.

The title of the thesis which she presented read, "The Relative Intensities of Some Lines of the X-Ray Spectrum."

THE VELIN AWARD

Miss Armstrong, connected with the College of Engineering, received the Velin Award, which is a sum of $1500 to be given to the student who has made the most of her opportunities for a year of study abroad.

ADDRESS BY LIFEMAN

The exercises started with an address by Walter Lippman, editor of the New York World, who sketched the changes which have taken place in this country in the last 25 years. "We have learned, however, disconcerting it may be," he said, "that to move of the most urgent problems of our time we do not know the solution, indeed that we do not really know the problem, and have not yet succeeded in stating it clearly for ourselves."

THE POLITICAL EFFECT

"Within a period so brief that even a man of my age has seen the whole of it, the United States has been transformed from a relatively unimportant province in the civilization created by the European white man into a power whose influence is decisive in every corner of the world."

18 GRADUATED TO NAVY BY HARVARD

For First Time Students Have Completed Sea Course; Are Named Ensigns

With class days of 1830 gone into history, Harvard today turned its attention to the graduation of 18 seniors, who, having completed the course in naval science and tactics, were given commissions in the United States Navy.

Ensigns in the Frog Museum attended the award of ensign commissions in the naval reserve by Capt. Walter N. Vernon, commanding the U. S. S. Northampton. Officers attached to the department of naval science and tactics were present.

Harvard is one of six colleges in the nation where the award of naval reserve commissions is made this year for the first time.

Of the 18 ensigns commissioned, 14 are New England young men and 12 of them residents of Massachusetts. The list follows: Henry B. Bassett, Pittsburgh; James T. Baldwin, Brookline; Morris R. Brownell, Fairhaven; Arthur P. Buller, Jr., South-west; Harold P. Cross, Hyde Park; Stephen D. Fuller, South Orange; N. J.; George P. Hamilton, Jr., Boston; John G. Lewis, New York; Albert L. Love, Peabody; Lionel R. Marks, Cambridge; James H. Payson, Abbot, Peabody, Jr., Brookline; Robert E. Ross, Green-wich, Conn.; Malcolm P. Stewart, Jamaica Plain; Richard H. Thompson, Marblehead; and Walter J. St. Turnbull, Cambridge.

This baseball game with Yale was the only other event on the day's program, while the seniors took it easy in anticipation of commencement exercises tomorrow.

There are only two kinds of college men, those with a thirst to get ahead and those who just have a thirst," he stated.

"Of course, it isn't necessary to be a college graduate to be a failure, but it helps."

He realized that making money is one of the few things in our modern civilization it is still easy not to do. That is why the really successful failures in New York and other large cities are Phil Beta Kappa men.

Stating that all commencement speakers used as topics work and money, he said he would commend it into the advice "All play and no play make the man."

Pour on the milk and listen!

YOU'VE never seen, tasted or heard a cereal like Kellogg's Rice Krispies. Crunchy rice bubbles that actually crackle in milk or cream.

How tempting they are! All the flavor of toasted rice. How good for you! The full nourishment of the rich rice grain. Easy to digest and wholesome.

Serve Rice Krispies for breakfast. Try them for lunch with fruits or honey added. Ideal for kiddies' suppers. A favorite cereal with young and old.

Use Rice Krispies to make macaroons, candies. Butter and serve like pop corn. Sprinkle into soups. Use in place of nuts in any recipe.

Order a red-and-green package from your grocer. Oven-fresh in the inner-seal waxette wrapper. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. The fastest-growing cereal ever introduced.

Kellogg's RICE KRISPIES

RUDOLPH STORLAZZI, 3-year-old, of Medford st., Somerville, picked out Bunker Hill Day to try a fall from a window on the third floor of his home. And how lucky was "Rudy." Just a few hurts resulted. You see the boy with his sister, Olga. (Staff photo.)

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchen maid on the spot. See advertisement daily in the Free Book.

600 LIBRARY DELEGATES WILL PARADE IN COLONIAL COSTUMES

BANQUET AND BALL WILL FOLLOW

Tercentenary Dinner Part of Program at Convention in Swampscott

Six hundred delegates to the Northeastern Library Association convention at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, will parade in colonial costumes around the grounds before partaking of a "tercentenary banquet" at 6 o'clock today.

An old-fashioned ball with the atmosphere and dances of colonial days will conclude the three-day sessions of the librarians, who are here from all over eastern United States.

The annual meeting and election of officers for the Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont associations is scheduled for today, to be followed by an address in the convention hall on "Public Library Service" by Miss Mildred Chapp.

The parade tonight will be reviewed by the guests, representatives of the library associations participating in the event from a specially decorated balcony.

George H. Evans, chairman of the executive group, and the following state and special library association presidents will occupy honor places in the reviewing stand: Miss Ada M. Bell, president Maine Library group; H. F. Evans, Vermont; George H. Evans, Massachusetts; Miss Mary S. Bartlett, Connecticut; Mrs. Sara M. Sherman, Rhode Island; Miss Elizabeth M. Smith, New York; Miss Adeline T. Davidson, New Jersey; H. T. Dougherty, Western Massachusetts; Library Club; Rev. E. V. Persons, Special Library Association of Boston; Miss Dorothy Hopkins, New England School Library Association.

Prof. Eric Keller of Dartmouth College was the honor guest of the convention last night, and temple plates, autographs, were entertained Monday evening by the librarians.

A complete exhibit of all the new books on science, art, social subjects, biography and fiction, as a feature of the convention.

RAINY WEATHER TO CONTINUE

The showers which started last night, depositing 1.15 inches of rain up to 9 o'clock today, are expected to continue this morning. Temperatures are to be in the 50's and 60's, but the heavy rain was high at 10 o'clock, reaching 68 degrees.

Memorial Park to Be Presented Veterans

War veterans of Hyde Park will receive a gift of Memorial Park next Sunday through the Hyde Park Board of Trade.

Judge Francis J. Good, past vice commander of the American Legion, City of Allen and national city and state officials will take part in the exercises.

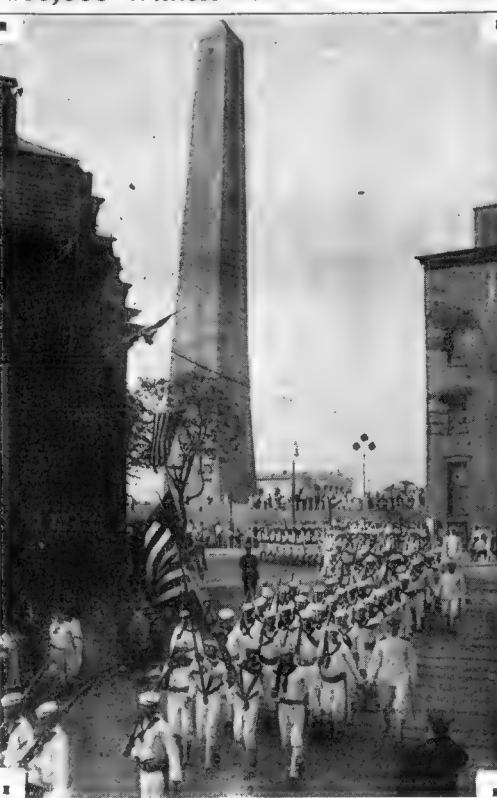

Moving Houses in Newton Opposed

Opposition of several members of the Newton board of aldermen, resulted in the postponement of action on the application of Joseph Cohen for permission to move two dwelling houses from one side of Walnut st. to Newton Center, to the other.

Dorchester Legion to Greet Members

The All-Dorchester post, American Legion, will hold a rally, initiation and entertainment, tomorrow evening at the William E. Ryan school, Edward Everett sq. There will be a street parade before the post's drum and bugle corps. The public will be admitted to the meeting. Henry F. Hamberg is chairman of the committee in charge.

100,000 Witness Bunker Hill Parade

TWO SOLID WALLS of humanity marked the course of the Bunker Hill Day parade in Charlestown yesterday. The spectacle was

Charlestown Quiet After Big Celebration

Charlestown was a very quiet place after a day of enormous celebration. The doors of hundreds of private houses had been open since 8 o'clock, and they were now closed. The streets were quiet, and the air was still. The celebration had been a great success, and the people were now resting.

ARBELLA TO GO UP TO BASIN

The Arbella, replica of the ship in which Gov. John Winthrop, carrying the first charter of the Massachusetts Bay colony, sailed to Boston, will leave for the Basin of the Bunker Hill Monument at 10 o'clock today.

2 SOMERVILLE FAMILIES FLEE FROM FLAMES

Blaze in Apartment Block Is Blamed on Smoking in the Basement

Two families, including several children were driven to the street in night clothing when fire broke out in the three-story wooden dwelling at 24 Webster st., Somerville.

According to District Chief William Young, the blaze started in the basement, possibly from cigarette smoking and worked up to the unoccupied first floor, filling the house with smoke.

Dominic de Russo, living on the second floor, rescued his family and that of George Jordan on the top floor and fled. The damage was estimated at $1500.

FATHER FIGHTS FOR GIRL, 7

A battle over the custody of Helen Agnes Allen, seven, was waged in Supreme Court today in her father, George W. Allen, Boston driver, and Harold G. and Lelia R. Harding of Providence.

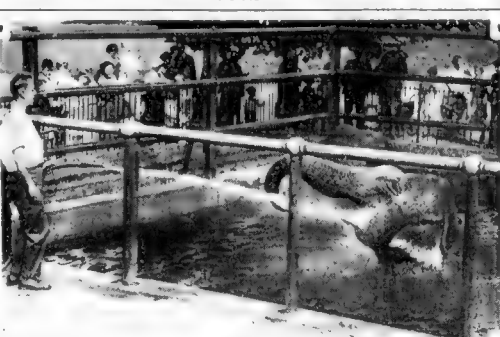

The buildings brought a petition for a writ of habeas corpus to get possession of the child, who was locked away in them following the death of her mother in 1925.

It was stated the buildings were appointed guardians of Helen by the Rhode Island courts, and that Allen kidnapped her on June 4.

After hearing evidence of the father and his aged mother, Judge Pierce continued the case to July 18 and ordered that Allen should have custody, in the meantime.

ELEPHANT HANDLERS AT FRANKLIN PARK

MAURICE J. COTTER GIVING HIS CHARGE A DRINK

How would you like to handle an elephant for a living? It is a great little racket if you care to handle Maurice J. Cotter, who has charge of two of the animals at Franklin Park.

And he certainly can handle them, too. The two huge beasts who would probably not even average fifteen years of age, are tame as cats.

After having evidence of the father and his aged mother, Judge Pierce continued the case to July 18 and ordered that Allen should have custody, in the meantime.

There, has twisted the 24-inch steel bars of his cage with his trunk. And what the two of them could do to this little fence around their enclosure. But they behave themselves pretty well.

The two paid drinks to Cotter and they are more tame than domestic cats. They are kept in the cage at night, but during the day they are out in the yard at large.

"That's all there is," said Cotter, "and Cotter, who has been located at the elephant house for the past 11 years. "Of course they get tough once in a while, but they just have to be humored along. Why, Tracy,

Women would like to know

"How do they make the perfected loaf?"

WHEN women are told that Mother Hubbard Bread is perfected bread, they want to know just what that means and how it is made.

It means perfection in every step of making the loaf:

First: The most perfect bread ingredients. The world's finest wheat flour, the very best for flavor, taste and nourishment. First grade, rich milk. Table-quality granulated sugar. Purest salt. The finest shortening and yeast obtainable.

Second: These perfect ingredients are then blended and perfectly mixed with the most careful supervision.

Third: The raising of the dough is of the greatest importance. Here controlled temperature and scientific timing have been brought to the highest degree of perfection.

Fourth: The baking—neither too fast nor too slow. It is highly important in making the perfected loaf that it be perfectly baked for just exactly the right length of time.

Mother Hubbard Bread, the perfected loaf, is the result of the perfected process of bread baking. You will find it perfect for crust, for texture, for slicing, for taste, for toasting—perfect on every point by which you judge bread.

Get a loaf of Mother Hubbard, the perfected bread, at your dealer's today.
